Epsom-based couple Emma Hancock and Sam Penfold were finally able to move out of their family homes and buy their first home together thanks to Help to Buy: Equity Loan.

The couple had originally been saving for a 5% deposit and planning to take out a high loan-to-value (LTV) mortgage. However, in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, many high LTV mortgage products were taken off the market, meaning they no longer had the deposit required to purchase their first home.

Their plans for homeownership were reignited once they discovered the Help to Buy: Equity Loan scheme which requires a deposit of just 5%. This meant the young couple were able to take that all-important first step on the housing ladder together.

Now settled in their new home at Hill's Sycamore Gardens, the couple are in love with their apartment and its location. Emma says: "We looked at a number of new builds, but as soon as we saw the apartments at Sycamore Gardens, we put down our deposit. The show apartment felt so inviting and was well designed in terms of size and layout - we knew we'd found our perfect first home!"
